Teachers Cited for Vandalism to Administrator's Vehicle

One former and one current Reedsburg School District teachers were cited for their part in vandalizing a Reedsburg High School administrator's vehicle during the graduation ceremony on Friday night.

Reedsburg Police were notified that during the 2016 graduation ceremony the administrator's vehicle received two flat tires. It was determined that the valve stem pins were removed and the tires subsequently flattened.

Police and school officials reviewed security camera footage and identified James L. Reynolds (50) of Hillpoint, a former Reedsburg High School teacher and current Weston School District employee, and Tracy L. Chambas (44) of Baraboo, a current Webb Middle School employee, were involved in the vandalism.

Both Reynolds and Chambas were cooperative with the investigation and took responsibility for their actions, characterizing it as "a prank". Both were cited for Disorderly Conduct and released pending a Municipal Court date.
